MEETATMASONICTEMPLE

The Ypsilanti Grange met Saturday afternoon at the Masonic temple. Roll call was responded to by telling a story or singing a song. Mrs. Louise Crippen, aged 70 years, sang "Old Folks at Home" in a very pleasing manner. Ennis Twist spoke on "The Grange and Politics." He stated formerly polispoke on "The Grange and Politics." He stated formerly politics could not be lawfully discussed in grange meetings, but that now it was permissible to discuss political questions, but not the merits of any candidate.

RAY BATTERY BEATS THE AMERICAN OIL CO.

The Ray Battery ball team opened the season in Ypsilanti Sunday by defeating the American Oil company of Jackson by a score of 2 to 0. In the neighborhood of 400 fans witnessed the game. Crossman pitched and had the visitors at his mercy throughout the nine innings. Two games are scheduled this week with the Howlett Clowns Saturday and Sunday, May 27 and 28. Both games will be called at 3 o'clock sharp. Fans, don't miss these games. You will see a good article of ball as well as a lot of comical stunts. The Ray Battery new athletic park is one of the best ball parks in this part of the state and it has been built for those who enjoy the national sport and to give Ypsi-lanti a place where those who wish can go and see a good game of

HOW TO MAKE YOUR SKIN FRESH AND CLEAR

Every woman passes as pretty if only her skin is fresh, smooth and young. It is within the power of every woman to possess this attraction to make her complexion as beautiful as she longs for it to be.

The secret? Cleopatra knew and practiced it in the days of ancient Egypt. She observed a daily ceremonious cleansing. The cleansers she used were the same you may have today, Palm and Olive oils.

These beautitying oils are scientifically blended in famous Palmolive Soap. They give it mildness, wonderful soothing qualities, profuse, creamy and refreshing lather.

Cleansing with Palmolive is a beauty treatment in itself. No woman should say her skin is too sensitive to use soap until she has tried Palmolive.

The attractive green cake, the natural color of the oils, is within the reach of every one who appreciates that cleanliness is the greatest beautifier.

You can buy Palmolive Soap at all first class groceries and drug stores.

"You are my beloved," asserted Marcus, and with the girl's whispered "yes," he allowed her to leave the room.

Evelyn went immediately to her mother's apartment and, opening the door, slipped in and sank down upon the floor at Mrs. Robertson's side.

"I've told him I'd marry him," she said, with trembling lips. "Mother dear, oh, please, mother dear, don't you think you could borrow some money from Robert for me? I must have it. After I'm married to Marcus, I could get it all back for you. I know I could. I've just got to have a lot of money, and you can't expect me to Evelyn rose wearily. She could imagine the heights of her mother's scorn if she discovered the actual situation.' She felt that she would rather tell MacKenzie than the unsympathetic, frowning woman in the chair.

"There's no use, mother, in trying to talk to you," she muttered. "I'll manage some way, though only God knows

Mrs. Robertson took up her book and gazed sternly at her daughter over the top of it.

"Very well, Evelyn," she said, ungraciously. "You're of age. If that's the way you feel about it, there's nothing more to be said."

Whereupon the speaker began to read, and a very hopeless girl crept out of the room.

When Evelyn was repairing the ravages made by her emotions, Polly Hopkins crept into the Robertson garden. Her fear of Mrs. Robertson was mingled with a thrilling happiness. She had seen Granny Hope and Wee Jerry eat the fresh eggs; Daddy's promise would keep him out of trouble with Old Marc; and the beautiful stranger would help them!

She gave a piercing little trill, the signal she had always used to call Evelyn from the house. Almost at once a figure stepped from the door to the porch directly in front of her, and terrified, she shrank back among the vines and clung there.

Silhouetted against the bright light was Robert Percival. He stood gazing straight ahead of him at the dark driveway, but turned when Evelyn appeared beside him. Polly heard the murmur of their voices, that was all. They then disappeared into the house, Evelyn laughingly pushing the soldier ahead of her. Quickly the girl came out again; and Polly could hear her swift-coming breaths as she ran softly down the steps.

"Shush," hissed Polly Hopkins. Lordy, I was scared to death some one'd catch me."

"Pollyop," questioned Evelyn anxiousy. "What'd he say? Was he angry?"

Their heads were very close together, and Polly gave the message in

"He wants you to come to Granny Hope's hut at nine o'clock tonight, an' I guess you best do it. He's as mad as ever a man can be."

"I'm afraid," Evelyn wailed. "I'm terribly afraid, Polly dear."

All the sympathy in Polly's heart came to sudden life.

"I reckon you be," she returned. "But you've got to get up your spunk an' go. Oscar'd just as soon come bustin' right in your house here, I guess if you don't. You come along, an' at nine o'clock I'll hike over an' get in the hut too. Say, why can't you talk just a little nicer to him? Granny "If you so forgot yourself, your Hope's got a Bible, an' it says when a

Before Evelyn could say another word, the squatter girl slipped away among the shadows. The other, although surrounded with every luxury, went wretchedly up the steps and, forcing a smile to her lips, passed into the music room.

Billy-goat Hopkins had blinked many times before his little mistress came home. Larry Bishop had gone to his lonely hut, and Daddy Hopkins and Granny Hope were dozing in front of the stove.

In nervous tension Polly watched the clock crawl along toward the hour of the meeting between Oscar and Evelyn. About a quarter to nine, she stole out of doors.

By familiar paths, slipping past a shanty here and there, Pollyop came at length upon a lonely shack set on a point by itself. She went around to the back, opened the door, and once manded gruffly. "Oh, she's comin' all right," an swered Polly, "but she were afraid. So I came along to see she got home safe."

A loud laugh fell from Bennett's

"You're a clever kid, Pollyop," he said, more affably. "Cunning as a weasel, d-d if you aint! Sit down. I won't bite you!" Polly squatted on the floor by the old table; and Oscar eased himself gingerly down onto a rickety bench, "I bet she was scared pink at what I told you to tell 'er," he burst out after a while. "She's about the most lily-livered woman I ever saw." For the space of a few seconds Polly looked at the speaker. Then: "I'm thinkin' she ain't lovin' you no more, Oscar, an' a woman without love in her ain't worth nothin'."

There was no smile on the lovely face when the words were finished. She had spoken the truth, and Oscar Bennett knew it.

"I've been a fool, I guess," he ejaculated, "a perfect fool! I might better 'a' married you, Pollyop. Since you was knee high to a grasshopper, I've had a leaning toward you. By now I'd had a home and some comfort." His glowing eyes were upon her, and for an instant Polly lost her

"I wanted to 'fess up to you this morning, Poll," Oscar ran on. "It's a funny thing, but I reckon I care more for your little finger than for Eve's whole body. Maybe some day after I get all her cash -

Polly coughed down a lump that persisted in coming up in her throat. "You needn't spiel lovin's to me, Oscar," she gulped, "an' I believe in bein' honest. So, before your woman comes, I might as well give you a bit. of my mind. If I owned you from your cap to your boots, I wouldn't use you for a doormat in front of Daddy's

He shot a look of amazement. The confident smile faded from his face. and his lips sagged at the corners. Then he arose to his feet.

"I been thinking about you all day," he broke forth. "You've got everything-looks, action and brains. I want you, Pollyop and I'm going to kiss you this time, so help me God!"

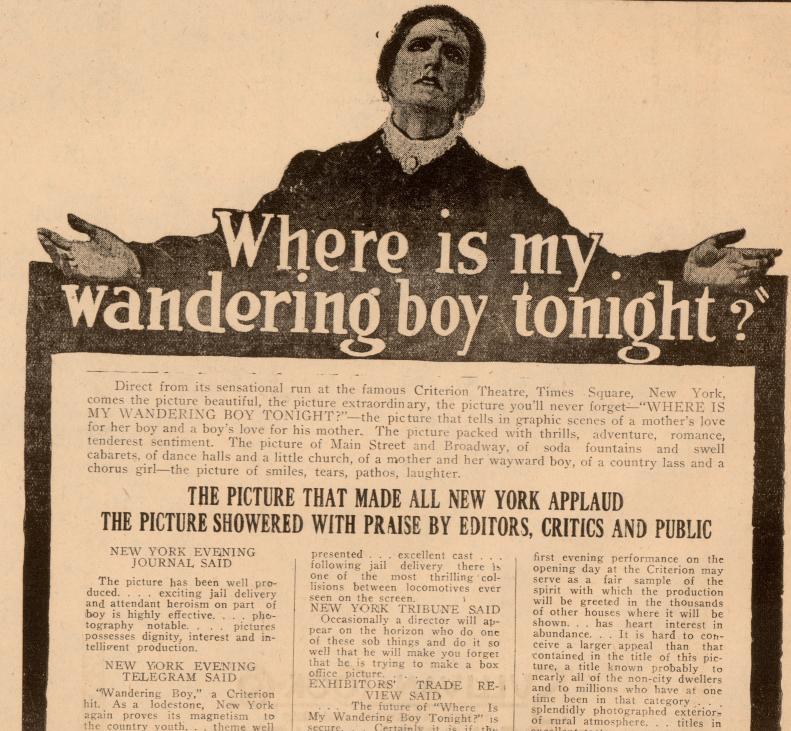

He took a step toward her and Polly scrambled up. Just at that moment Evelyn Robertson entered. Oscar Bennett turned swiftly, and Polly, very pale, placed herself at Eve's side. And as the wind foamed the lake to fury and shook Granny Hope's forsaken little hut, the man and two girls stood silent a long, tense minute.

Fordson"

The Fordson Tractor is taking much of the drudgery out of farm life; it is solving the labor problem; it is reducing the cost of preparing land by almost one half of what it was with horses; and it is saving one third to one half of the farmer's time; and making farm life more attractive,

The Fordson will run your threshing machine -and at the most opportune time for you. It will operate the milking machines, saw your wood, fill your silo, pump the water, and take care of every kind of belt work-

And don't forget—it will plow six to eight acres in a ten hour day, handling two plows

Thus the Fordson is the ideal year-round tractor. It will pay for its fall and winter keep in

There's a big story to tell you about the Fordson-and a true one-come in and get the facts. Or, if you prefer, telephone or drop us a card and we will bring them to you.

MILK IS BOTH MEAT AND DRINK

Herbert Hoover, international authority on food supply, realized the need and authorized the publication by Charles Scribner's Sons of the "Food Guide," based on the food facts found by the War

We can conserve wheat, meat, sugar and fats, and be none the worse for it, BUT WE MUST-USE MILK. The children of today must have it for the hardy manhood tomorrow. A quart a day for every child and a pint for every adult is not too high. A commission found, when a city had cut down its milk consumption 25 per cent, twice as large a per cent of the children were found undernourished—half starved.

"Grown people should use milk and appreciate that it is for more than a beverage. Comparing it with tea and coffee is not sensible. The idea that food is 'something to chew' breaks down completely when milk is considered. Milk is both meat and drink."
